

Registration Policy – Romer Labs[®]

The details you provide when registering must be your own details and they must be correct. Impersonating someone else is a very serious breach of the terms and conditions of acceptable use which apply to your use of this site.

The primary reasons that we collect registration information is to customise the service that we provide to you whether through this site or by direct contact based on the information you provide. By providing your registration information, you are agreeing to us providing that service and promoting products or services we consider may interest you, from time to time.

We regard collection and retention of your personal information very seriously and will strictly observe our privacy policy in respect of your information. If you have any concerns or questions, please contact marketing@romerlabs.com